We are going to follow the comments and change the terminology.

The term "primary school" was left only where it does not refer to age of pupils.

Unfortunately we cannot distinguish the two suggested levels of secondary education since the textbooks from both groups of textbooks (for ages 14 and 15) were used in our study. Therefore, the term “secondary school” seems to be the most appropriate. The age group discussed is emphasised in the chapter 2.

The caption of figure 4 (new figure 1) was changed to: Front pages of some European geography textbooks studied in the research.

The term “non-teachers” was omitted and the sentence change into: “The first tend to emphasize a regional approach, whereas the second emphasize a thematic approach.”
