

Interactive
Comment

Interactive comment on “Brief Communication: Freaque wave occurrences in 2013” by P. C. Liu

P. Liu

paul.c.liu@noaa.gov

Received and published: 10 December 2014

First my apology for using the term "freaque" without explanation which is a portman-teau word I coined and started using some years ago to simplify the use of "freak or rogue" in many cases. While some colleagues went along, it was mostly being ignored. It's just a personal preference, just like some use "freak", some use "rogue", I prefer to use "freaque" waves to indicate the out of the blue, totally unexpected waves occur in the ocean.

Next Referee#1 pointed correctly a rather awkward situation: I prepared the manuscript based on the information mostly from a blog I authored. I did not know what's the best way to handle it gracefully so I tried to treat them separately. Referee#1 found it "dodgy", I am open for what's an appropriate way to best handle it!

Full Screen / Esc

Printer-friendly Version

Interactive Discussion

Discussion Paper

I sincerely appreciate the editorial corrections, it will be duly corrected.

---

Interactive comment on Nat. Hazards Earth Syst. Sci. Discuss., 2, 7017, 2014.

NHESSD

2, C2716–C2717, 2014

---

Interactive
Comment

Full Screen / Esc

Printer-friendly Version

Interactive Discussion

Discussion Paper

C2717

