

Response to Editor

---

The paper was reviewed and the comments were taken into account. However, introducing new text, as requested by the referees, was not properly accompanied by citations to support several of these statements. Some references have been suggested by referees, you could choose those (if pertinent) or others, but the new statements about links between rainfall events and landslides, or weathering and landslides, should be supported by some references to the available international literature

We are grateful for the swift response of the Editor. Small modifications has been made to the manuscript and references regarding weathering, rainfall-induced landslides and the triggering mechanism of slow and catastrophic landslides have been added.